We're stepping up now on getting the wayfinding work done in Belper, and after the latest review it was decided to drop one of the interpretation boards. That means we have a spare stand, and we were wondering if we could provide one in the Coppice car park – effectively there to welcome visitors. It'd be right next to the entrance, on the little patch of grass opposite the garage. There's a kerb, so it wouldn't be likely to be hit by vehicles or be in the way of the fair. Is that something you think the council would be happy with? Perhaps a short site visit sometime would be a good option sometime?

Best wishes
